

PERSONAL STATEMENT

I'm a Geographer currently based in Portland, Oregon. My undergraduate education at Middlebury College focused on developing technical GIS and cartography skills and learning to teach effectively through multi-media materials and problem-based learning. This understanding of how people learn informs the products I create and the way I approach data.

As a Senior Research Analyst and GIS Coordinator at ECONorthwest, the largest economic consulting firm in the Pacific Northwest, I perform spatial analysis and create maps for a wide variety of clients and subject areas. My responsibilities include conducting research, writing reports, holding trainings, making interactive maps, managing clients, designing graphics, and organizing stakeholder outreach efforts.

My professional experience and education have helped me become an adept problem solver, hone my technical expertise, and communicate clearly through visual, written, and oral mediums. In the future, I am looking to combine spatial analysis, graphic design, and effective storytelling to create striking digital products.
